Guide to Laws and Orders in force in Bengal 1925

Vol. I—Part I
Index to Laws

CALCUTTA :
Bengal Government Press.
1926.

For official use only.

GENERAL PREFACE.

The "Guide to Laws and Orders in force in Bengal, 1925", supersedes the "District Officers' Handy Reference Book, 1918", and the "Government Circulars and Orders in force in Bengal, 1906", and combines them in one compilation. It consists of two parts; Volume I, which is again divided into two parts, is an index in which references are given to the laws, manuals, circulars and orders, and other sources of information on every subject included in the index; the remaining volumes (II to XVII) contain the circulars and orders which are not incorporated in manuals or other works of reference.

Mr. W. C. Macpherson, I.C.S., published his book "Aid to Revenue and Magisterial Duties in Bengal" in 1891. A revised edition was published in 1897 under the title "The Bengal District Officers' Note Book". This was replaced in 1901 by the official publication known as the "District Officers' Handy Reference Book" of which revised editions were published in 1908 and 1918. The title given to the present compilation has been chosen to show that the work has been prepared on lines intended to make it of use not only to District Officers but to all who are engaged or interested in administrative and judicial work in Bengal.

The "Guide to the Laws and Orders in force in Bengal, 1925", has been compiled by Mr. J. C. Cuzen who was placed on special duty for the purpose in August, 1924.

PREFACE TO VOLUME I.

Volume I of the " Guide to Laws and Orders in force in Bengal, 1925 ", follows generally the arrangement of the " District Officers' Handy Reference Book, 1918 ". The following are the more important differences :—

(1) The Volume has been divided into two parts; Part I is an index to laws, while Part II forms an index to circulars and orders and to rules in manuals and other recognised works of reference. References to literature, whether of a general or district application, and to reports of Commissions and Committees are also given in Part II.

(2) The chronological tables of Indian and Provincial Acts and Regulations in force in Bengal, which formed Part I of the District Officers' Handy Reference Book, have been replaced in Part I of the Volume by an alphabetical index. Chronological tables are available in several other compilations (e.g., the Bengal Code, Unrepealed General Acts and Chronological Tables of the Indian Statutes), but these contain no alphabetical index. It is hoped that the supply of such an index in this volume will be of use. Its utility has been enhanced by the inclusion of the extant Public Acts of Parliament relating to India as well as by a selection of English and Indian Law Books.

(3) The detailed index to Laws, comprised in Part I, has been made much fuller by noting under each subject, wherever necessary, not only the laws specifically enacted with reference to it but also the provisions in other laws (including the extant Public Acts of Parliament) which affect it.

(4) The Manuals, Codes, and other recognised books of reference in use in the Secretariat†, have been more fully indexed in Part II, in which also the literature on any subject, both of a general and district application, has been entered under it and not as a separate part of the compilation. This has also been done in respect of the reports of Commissions or Committees, with the object of making the references under each subject as complete as possible.

(5) The references to Circulars and Orders in Volumes II to XVII are to their serial numbers in those volumes and not to their issue numbers and dates.

2. Addenda and Corrigenda to the Index to Laws will be periodically issued.
